The scene is ended. The curtain has fallen on the drama of the death of the American stage and hidden from mortal gaze the features of one loved wherever known. His work before the footlights and especially in Kip Van Winkle won for Joseph Jefferson a place unique in the hearts of the theatre going world; a place that cannot be filled until time shall have dimmed the memory of him whose quaint humor and pathos have never failed to touch his hearers. His sunny disposition, his love for children and his ability to adapt himself to conditions as he found them secured for him the friendship of old and young. He has roused from feign sleep to delight thousands but he now rests in the embrace of that slumber which will last longer than the fabled repose of Rip and in a land where the ramble of tempos will not be heard.

The remains of John Paul Jones RESTING PLACE have long lain unhonored in Pa's, the actual location being unknown even to the government. Now that the untiring efforts of one man have located the casket of the man who did such effective service for this country when such service was sorely needed, several cities are putting forth claims to having the honor of his remains resting within their limits. If he was commissioned from one city and received a medal from another it was because those cities were, at the time, the seat of the government. He was a naval hero, it is true but Annapolis was then unknown as a naval school. Why retitle the several claims. Let him be buried at the present capitol of the nation. He should under no state's flag. His remains should repose by the side of other heroes whose memory the nation has seen fit to honor.

Considerable anxiety has been expressed by the press over the attitude of France toward the Russian fleet which has been moving in foreign waters. It is charged that the fleet has been aided in French ports at Madagascar and Cochin-China. The French contend that Rejewensky observed the letter of international law by keeping within the three mile limit. There is now no danger of trouble, but the incident serves to illustrate the fact that there is great danger in international alliances.

England is bound by treaty to assist Japan in case the latter should become engaged in war with two nations. It is an open question in international law as to whether neutral water now extends to within three miles of shore. Going on the assumption that it does not Japan might easily have become engaged in war with France for giving aid to the Russian fleet. Then being at war with both Russia and France, England would have been in duty bound to come to her assistance. Because of other alliances now existing in Europe much of the continent would have become involved. It was the advice of Washington to this nation to remain free from entangling alliances and the admonition may well be heeded.

To say the least it is charitable in Governor Pennypacker to look upon the work of the last legislature as he does. The following declaration is something of a surprise to those who followed the daily course of the two houses.

The work of the legislature during the present session, so far as it appears from the examination I have made of the bills up to the present time, ought to be satisfactory to the people with respect both to its integrity and its efficiency. While as is to be expected, there are occasional evidences of crudity and want of technical information, there are no indications of improper or corrupt influences. The members of the senate and the house have fairly represented the intelligence, interests and activities of the people of the commonwealth. Upon the whole, justice to the legislature requires that they should receive general commendation.

When we think of the juggling with votes that recorded men as voting for or against measures when they were not present at all as voting for or against when they were present and voted directly opposite we are not disposed to commend them for "integrity and efficiency." When we remember the passing of a resolution sanctioning a course of President Roosevelt and in a short time reversing the vote at the conclusion of orders "integrity" is not suggested to the mind. When we read the reasons for the veto of the executive which so frequently point out noncompliance with constitutional requirements we can hardly credit the assertion that they "fairly represented the intelligence of the people of the commonwealth." When we consider the "rippers," far-reaching and injurious, we are not satisfied to accept the statement that "there are no indications of improper or corrupt influences." That the house and senate have acted without the necessary intelligence and care is evident from the great number of bills that did not in form meet the constitutional requirements; that they have not had their constituents constantly in mind is made plain in many instances, especially when they took action on the matter of allowing the trolley lines to carry freight; that they have been influenced by causes other than conscience the "rippers" abundantly testify. If their record in the recent legislature is their proudest monument they are to be pitied—save that conscientious minority that steadfastly did its duty. The record they have written is a blot and a stain on the state's reputation. Their work has been both reckless and ruthless.

Throat Coughs

A tickling in the throat; hoarseness at times; a deep breath irritates it;—these are features of a throat cough. They're very deceptive and a cough mixture won't cure them.

May Lippincott.

In the current number of Lippincott's Magazine the opening novel, by Ella M. Middleton Tytbon, is placed in the life of Dilawra. Socomplete charming is "The Tuba of the Tide" that it seems likely to be the forerunner of considerable "Blue Hen" State fiction. The love-story is preeminent and absorbing, while the local color and provincial character show an intimate knowledge of the scenes through which the plot winds to a satisfying (unexpected) conclusion. Miss Tytbon is remembered as the author of an earlier novella in Lippincott's Magazine, as well as of those popular dark sketches entitled "Poke Town People."

FIELD GENEVA CONSTITUTUTORY.

Although adopted only a few years ago the field-giving field artillery of Germany has been condemned, and is to be replaced by field guns similar to those used by the Japanese in their war with Korea. The Japanese have made mistakes. They have been deceived by the example of our own country who have made mistakes. They do not corrupt nor thieve break through and steal." Cast his statue in time-defying bronze and set it up before your temple of justice, that generations yet unborn may learn what manner of man was he, who became the dauntless leader of our latest social revolution.

A new amusement took the town by storm, and opened on Wednesday of last week with a blaze of glory. We have had nothing like it before, and the only wonder is, that men can be found daring enough to launch the amount of money required to launch an evening's amusement in motion; some talk of thousands of dollars; others declare that it actually ran into the millions; but whatever the amount expended, its magnitude can hardly be conceived until you see hundreds of performers, male and female, arrayed in brilliant costumes which dazzle the eyes and enthrall the senses, and completely rule the hour that you forget your earthly surroundings, and actually believe yourself to be in fairland; the name of this wonderful exhibition is "The Hippodrome." It was prepared for the public by two young men, Thompson and Duxbury, and it was said when they finished the work and paid all the bills which amounted to many thousands, they had but fifty cents left as the balance to start the show. The first part of the exhibition is suspended to take place in the plane Mars; the king of our nearest aerial neighbors, except the moon, desires to see a Yankee circus and sends his messengers down to earth, which might have been by wireless telegraph; what the performance then goes on with a series of miracles from a star to the end of the show is the battle of Amherstville; during this portion of the performance there are a number of bits the scene more realistic than anything that we have seen in New York before; one of the startling innovations is where a troop of cavalry dash into a river and swim their horses across to the other side; there is no sham about this part of the troops and the horses are real horses, and the water real water; you can feel your heart jump into your mouth as the rough riders plunge into the river. It is impossible in my brief space to give even a remote idea of this wonderful show; to appreciate it, it must be seen; but, while speaking about our amusements I must not forget that "Barnum and Bailey" are also in town with the "Greatest Show on Earth." Brother Barnum is in paradise, I suppose, and if there is any communion between paradise and the earth, I can imagine the old showman looking benignantly down on "The Greatest Show on Earth," and, though its creator is enjoying the reward of "the just man made perfect" he must feel grateful to his old partner, Mr. Bailey, that he still keeps the name of Barnum to the front.

IN LETTERS OF GOLD

Should the Name of John Monaghan be Written—a New Announcement—Greatest Show on Earth.

Special Correspondence to THE GAZETTE.

New York, April 26.—Write his name in letters of gold, and emboss it upon your city gates; that he who runs may read; proclaim it from the housetops and in the streets, on your highways and your byways, that all the world may hear, for we have in our midst the prophet of a new dispensation, who proclaims aloud to the women of every land, wherever the sun rises and sets, that widow's honor is woman's most exalted condition, and fruitful maternity her choicest glory.

The name of this grand apostle is Monaghan and he lives in the borough of Bronx in this city and he is the builder and owner of several apartment houses, fitted up in first-class style and provided with every modern convenience. For several years past an evil has been growing in New York, which makes it difficult for a man and woman who had children, to find shelter on the island of Manhattan, and right here is where John Monaghan, of Bronx, puts in his finest work; he has a door to let in one of his apartment houses, an applicant appears who looks the apartment over and finds everything O. K. and then rents reasonable accommodations. Mr. Monaghan that she will take the flat. "One moment, madam," says the polite landlord with a smile, "and I will see if there is room for you." And when the Pinkerton took the case in hand, a full account of this remarkable swindle is found in Leslie's Monthly Magazine for May.

"NOT BY BREAD ALONE"

Is the Theme of Rev. Bigelow's Sermon—The Needs of the Soul.

Special Correspondence to THE GAZETTE.

CINCINNATI, April 24.—At the Vine Street Congregational church yesterday the pastor, Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, spoke of the deeper needs of man's nature which make religion a necessity. Hand in part:

"It was not said, 'Man does not live by bread alone.' He lived by bread and something more. It is a trite thing when a man must choose between the satisfaction of his body and the integrity of his soul. When this choice must be made, mankind are a unit in praising those who starved in their garret or died on a scaffold rather than save the body at the cost of the soul. If the soul is the immortal part and the body but the tenement of a day, then, if both cannot live, it is better for the body to die.

In a well-ordered society, however, there could be no such discord. Both soul and body would be nourished. There can be no health of one without the nourishment of the other, as Browning would say: "nor soul helps body more, now, than flesh helps soul." Those who insist upon social justice that all may have their daily bread—they are the friends of the soul. Moreover, when we insist upon the needs of the soul, we do not deny the needs of the body. First among the needs of the soul is a clean conscience.

It is man's glory that he knows the meaning of that word, "right." Right is a yoke that enslaves him. Remorse like a tie within him. He is a free man who can look his fellow-man full in the face, who hides no ugly secret in his heart, who respects himself and has none to fear in all the universe.

STARVING WITH BREAD

A man may have bread enough and to spare, but he will starve without that inward peace. He may have linen and fine raiment, but he will be naked, shivering and awful if the sense of wrong is racking in his heart. The salvation of the soul, what can it mean but the normal life and growth of the soul? Conversion, what is that but the discovery that a man has a soul which must be fed with its own food? There is no true life until the soul comes to a realization of its sovereignty. Redemption is a walking of the desire and determination to be a man, not a wolf or a swine, but a man, conscious of his divine heritage and his lofty purpose on this earth. Such a man cannot live by bread alone.

FOOD FOR HUNGRY HEARTS

Another need of the soul while bread cannot supply is love. Love, no, is meat and drink and without the gifts of the world are dry husks. The wife has put the house in order. She has removed the dust from a hundred pieces which might have been passed over. She has created an atmosphere of welcome by countless little obscure services. Does the husband take it all as a matter of course? Has he no loving sense of recognition of that thoughtful, heartful ministry? A talk of appreciation may cover the labor of a day and a grateful word feed the hungry heart with happy ness.

Another need of the soul is religion. Man may live without crosses and without churches, but there come times when they ask themselves and question and they would give much to know that life has a rational meaning and that man is not mocked by his immortal hopes.

The atom trembles at the thought of the infinite. The mind craves a reason for things. The heart can't be reconciled to a lovesick universe. The philosopher who traces the course of the stars, the martyr who bears witness to his truth on the uplifted cross, the saint who labors over a score of skepks, these sursum scale are they all the prey of maggots in the end? That thought would kill humanity. Bread alone will not do. We cannot live without hope.

No need to suffer if you will always use this great, modern cure for pain, absolutely safe, soothing, curative and healing.

Used internally or externally, it goes like lightning to the seat of trouble, and, by allaying the inflammation, it drives out the real cause of all painful sickness and quickly makes you perfectly well.

Price 50 cents and $1.00. Fully guaranteed.

Letter to Harry Carpenter, Bedford, Pa.

Dear Sir: Let's talk it right out before folks; there's nothing to hide in your business or ours; if there is, we'd better hide ourselves.

We are in trouble to make money; so are you. We make it by saving our customer's money; so do you. Our object, in trade, is to save your customers' word from rotting and iron and steel and tin from rusting; yours the same.

We work for thousands of property owners, you for a few. We can do some things that you can't do; we have the facilities. You can do some things that we can't; you are there. Let us work together; be faithful to one another. We can serve our customers better by working together and being faithful to one another.

Your dollar, put into our paint, will paint more fast than in any other way; and the paint will last longer. This saves you money, and saves your customers' money. That's all there is in our whole business.

Yours truly,
